Originally opened in 1990 and once marketed as the “Eighth Wonder of the World,” the former Trump Taj Mahal Casino in Atlantic City recently underwent a site lighting restoration. The project rehabilitated the existing poles and fixtures while carefully preserving the property’s original aesthetic.

In partnership, Spring City Electrical and Independence Lighting restored the lighting infrastructure through a process that included sandblasting the poles and fixtures to bare metal and applying a new protective paint finish. This work removed corrosion caused by the coastal environment and extended the life of the existing equipment.

The restoration improved the appearance and durability of the site lighting while maintaining the character of the property.
