Philadelphia, PA, United States
Spring City Electrical

The Avenue of the Arts along South Broad Street in Philadelphia is the city's premier performing arts corridor, home to major theaters and cultural institutions that anchor the city's vibrant arts scene.

As part of the Philadelphia Streetlight Improvement Project (PSIP), Spring City Electrical, in partnership with Independence Lighting, supported the one-for-one replacement of decorative high-pressure sodium streetlights with energy-efficient LED fixtures. The upgrade improves nighttime visibility for pedestrians, bicyclists, and motorists while supporting the goals of Vision Zero.

The project is part of Philadelphia's largest municipal energy conservation initiative to date, helping reduce city carbon emissions by nearly 10% while enhancing the nighttime character and safety of this iconic corridor.
