

West Reading Borough

West Reading, PA, United States

Spring City Electrical / ABLE Power Products

Incorporated in 1907, West Reading grew from farmland along the historic Berks and Dauphin Turnpike—now Penn Avenue—into a thriving borough known for its strong community and active downtown. Today, continued infrastructure improvements like the Penn Street lighting project support the borough’s ongoing growth while preserving the character that makes West Reading a destination for shopping, dining, and community events.

For this project, Independence Lighting, in coordination with Spring City Electrical, supplied the decorative poles and lighting fixtures installed along Penn Street. More recently, Independence Lighting provided updated Spring City LED luminaires, assisting with fixture selection and performing detailed photometric calculations to ensure the design met performance, safety, and visual quality goals.

The upgraded lighting enhances visibility and contributes to a more inviting streetscape for residents, visitors, and local businesses—supporting the borough’s commitment to safe, functional, and vibrant public spaces.
